FITZGERALD REPLIES TO FOSS

PLEDGES SAFETY AT SEA

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Germany has accepted in principle America's interpretation of the rules under which her submarines may operate.

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, so informed Secretary of State Lansing today. Only the matter of reducing the formal agreement to writing and serving it on the State Department remains to be done.

Secretary Lansing made the following brief statement after Count von Bernstorff called on him:

"Ambassador von Bernstorff told me that his government accepted our position in principle."

Ambassador von Bernstorff this afternoon filed the following official memorandum with Secretary Lansing:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"With reference to our conversation of this morning I beg to inform you that my instructions concerning our answer to your last Lusitania note contains the following passage:

"'Liners will not be sunk by our submarines without warning and without safety of the lives of non-combatants, provided that the liners do not try to escape or offer resistance.'

"Although I know that you do not wish to discuss the Lusitania question until the Arabic incident has been definitely and satisfactorily settled, I desire to inform you of the above because this policy of my government was decided on before the Arabic incident occurred.

"I have no objection of your making any use you may please of the above information.

"I remain, my dear Mr. Lansing, very sincerely yours.

(Signed) "J. BERNSTORFF."

Secretary Lansing commented as follows on the statement:

"In view of the clearness of the foregoing statement, it seems needless to make any comment in regard to it other than to say that it appears to me a recognition . . . of fundamental principles for which we have contended."

Germany's action is accepted as the greatest diplomatic victory of the war. On leaving the State Department Count von Bernstorff stated that he considered the submarine issue as raised in the cases of the Gulflight, Lusitania and Arabic a closed incident.

The ambassador said that he had been directed by his government to notify the United States that hereafter no merchant vessels will be attacked by German submarines with-

Sterling Rate Drops to $4.51½, New Low Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Sterling exchange grew still weaker this morning, making new low records in price. Demand sterling declined 4¾ cents from the closing figure yesterday to $4.51½. Transactions last night at $4.65 were scattered. The prevailing rate was ¾ cents higher. During the forenoon there was a slight rally, demand rising to $4.52. Cables has sold during the morning as low as $4.52¼, but recovered to $4.52¾. Continental exchange was weak, too. There were few offerings of exchange on any European country. Bids were also scarce. In business circles it is feared a continued decline in sterling rates will greatly diminish this country's export trade.

Deny Foul Rumor About Grease of Boston Garbage

The Boston garbage set proved an alibi today on the foul rumor from Brockton that grease from Boston garbage is being exported to grease German cartridges.

Thus another international crisis is side-tracked.

A special committee of Brockton City Council visited Spectacle Island, where the Boston Development & Sanitary Company has a reduction plant. This company has the contract for disposing of Boston garbage.

The Brockton committee announced that it was staggered to find that grease from Spectacle Island was shipped to Germany for bullet coating.

At the reduction company offices in the Old South Building it was said today:

"We used to send a lot of grease to Liverpool, France and Genoa before the war to be made into soaps. But we never shipped any grease to Germany before the war or since."

Mirdite Tribesmen Defeat the Turks

ATHENS, Sept. 1.—Essad Pasha's Turkish followers have been defeated by Mirdite tribesmen in northern Albania, near Scutari. The Turks lost 215 killed and wounded, as well as 500 prisoners.

2 SHOT IN STRANGE ATTACK

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 1.—Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, the wealthy and prominent physician of Newport and this city, who was mysteriously shot with Miss Emily Burger, his maid and secretary, while autoing from here to Newport last night, died in the Rhode Island hospital in this city at 9:40 today without regaining consciousness.

The physician was shot in the back of the head and the right side.

Miss Burger, who was shot in the head, is recovering in the same hospital.

CHAUFFEUR A WITNESS.

Miss Burger and Dr. Mohr's colored chauffeur, George W. Healis, now held as a witness, say that the shooting was done by occupants of an automobile which trailed the Mohr car out of this city. The unknown assailants, they said, came up from the rear when the Mohr car was stalled at West Barrington, opened fire and dashed past and away.

Miss Burger was quizzed at the hospital today by Chief Inspector William F. O'Neil of the local force. He obtained from her the first story she has told of the shooting. He quotes her as saying:

"There was auto trouble from the time we started from Providence. We were sitting in the machine, which was going very fast. All of a sudden we stopped. The chauffeur got out, saying something was the matter with the carburetor. He turned off the headlights and was working on the machine for a few minutes.

"The next I knew I heard shots and felt a piercing. I started to get out of the machine. The chauffeur helped me back into it."

Mrs. Mohr, who has not been living with him since the trial of an assault suit brought against the doctor by a domestic in their home, hurried to the Rhode Island Hospital.

The doctor, who maintains offices here and in Newport, was making his regular Tuesday night trip by auto to Newport. At a dark spot in the road, near West Barrington, his colored chauffeur stopped the car, complaining that the carburetor was not working properly.

FIVE SHOTS FIRED.

The chauffeur had opened the hood of the car and walked around to the right side of the car, when another automobile, which had been following the doctor's car, approached, slowing down as it neared the stalled machine.

From this car five revolver shots were fired. Four of them took effect. Dr. Mohr was shot in the back of the head and through the back of the right shoulder. Miss Burger, who jumped up at the first shot, was hit also in the head and in the shoulder.

The doctor fell back into the car. Miss Burger fell outward, toppling over the side. The chauffeur reached up, caught her and lifted her to the ground.

DOCTOR IS DYING.

Healis then, according to the story he told the West Barrington police, helped her back into the car, and was still waiting, wondering what to do, when another automobile came along. The occupants of this car advised the chauffeur to rush the wounded back to Providence, to the Rhode Island Hospital.

On the arrival of the physician and his maid at the hospital, the police were notified. Chief Inspector W. F. O'Neil, of the Providence police, immediately placed Healis under arrest. He was turned over to Chief Thomas

1,100,000 RUSSIANS TAKEN

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—Since May 2 German troops have captured 1,100,000 Russians, according to an official review of military operations issued here today.

The review devoted to the results 200,000 Russians were killed or wounded in the same period, asserting that this estimate is conservative.

The review devoted to the results of the offensive movements in Poland, Galicia and Russia reads as follows:

"Since May 2, the beginning of the battle of Gorlice, headquarters announces the strength of Russian troops directly engaged at about 1,400,000. In the fighting since May 2, 1,100,000 men have been captured and at least 200,000 killed or wounded. This is a very conservative estimate; the real figures are surely much higher because the enemy saved his artillery by recklessly sacrificing his infantry.

FIRST FORCE WIPED OUT.

"The armies which were struck first at the beginning of our offensive were annihilated. Their losses were made up, however, by withdrawing troops from other regions, especially those held ready to invade Turkey, garrisons of Russian fortresses and half-drilled men, hurriedly transported from the interior.

"All these efforts were fruitless. The enemy was chased out of Galicia, Poland, Courland and Lithuania. We sent our enemies rolling backward in two separate groups. Twelve fortresses, among them four big ones, forming Russia's outer and inner lines of defence, are in the hands of the Germans and Austrians. This is a result of a campaign of less than four months."

During the month of August the German troops operating in the Eastern and Southeastern theatres of war captured 2,000 officers and 249,333 men, the General Staff reported today. They also took 2,180 cannon and 160 machine guns. Continuing their terrific drive eastward the Teutonic troops have reached the outer line of forts defending Grodno on the west.

CHECK ON THE DWINA.

Capture of Friedrichstadt by German troops is imminent, according to latest reports received here today. This will permit the crossing of the Dwina River which, according to German military experts, will result in the immediate fall of Riga and Vilna.

The Russians have made a desperate stand at Friedrichstadt and have suffered enormous losses under the German military fire.

The Germans received a temporary check at the Dwina because the Russians in that region had been heavily reinforced, but since the fall of Kovno additional troops have been dispatched to General Von Buelow, permitting him to resume his attacks with great vigor.

Ashcroft's Body Is Found on the F-4

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Confirmation that the body of G. T. Ashcroft, gunner's mate on the raised submarine F-4, had been positively identified, was cabled to the Navy Department today by Rear Admiral Bush, commandant at Honolulu. The message said the body was found while cleaning out the forward battery compartment. No other details relative to the submarine were given.

Start to Raze the Hotel Pelham Today

The demolition of the Hotel Pelham on the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets was scheduled to begin today.

The hotel has long been a familiar sight in the eyes of old Bostonians. Erected in 1857 and 1858 by the late Dr. John H. Dix, it was the first family hotel modelled on the French flat, or apartment house, in America.

Pegoud, 'Loop the Loop' Aviator, Is Killed in Action

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Adolphe Pegoud, the famous "loop the loop" aviator, has been killed in action.

Long before the war Pegoud was acclaimed as the premier aviator of the world.

Mrs. Smith Tells Woman Her Garb Is Not Proper

Mrs. Charlotte Smith, president of the Woman's Homestead Association, accosted a woman on Tremont street today and accused her of being improperly clad "from the waist up." Mrs. Smith later went to City Hall and asked Mayor Curley to take steps to enforce the proprieties on Tremont street.

"I saw this woman," she said. "I followed her into a store, and I said to her: 'You're not properly clad for the street. You may be dressed for the ball room, but not for Tremont street.' The woman wore simply gauze from the waist up, and she had a bracelet on her elbow."

The Mayor said he would see what he could do about it.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Two persons were instantly killed and two others were so badly injured that they are not expected to live when a carriage in which they were driving was struck by an Atlantic City express train at the Philadelphia & Reading railway tracks at a crossing in Laurel Springs, N. J., today.

PARLEY FAILS IN COWLES DIVORCE CASE; TRIAL IS ON

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 1.—The divorce cases of Dr. Edward S. Cowles and Mrs. Florence J. Cowles will go on trial at 2 o'clock this afternoon, according to announcement made at 10:30 this morning by Clerk of Courts Charles H. Knight.

While the courtroom full of spectators waited for the judge to appear, Clerk Knight entered the room and said:

"The court wishes me to announce that owing to the unavoidable tardiness of one witness, a recess will be taken until 2 o'clock, when this case will go to trial."

EXPECT FORMAL HEARING.

This announcement occasioned hot conjecture, in view of the conferences of Monday and Tuesday, the latter continuing till 2:30 o'clock this morning, in an effort to settle the case.

Some believed the hearing this afternoon would be purely formal, and would be uncontested by Dr. Cowles. Others saw in the announcement that the case

EX-MAYOR DENIES CHARGE

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today returned from New York and immediately turned his attention to the charges made against him by former Governor Foss. He read the Foss letter, which charged that when Foss was Governor Fitzgerald told him if he would appoint Dennis D. Driscoll as prison commissioner a strike at one of the Foss plants would be called off.

Repaired Nebraskan Sails for America

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 1.—The American steamer Nebraskan, which was badly damaged by a German torpedo off the southern coast of Ireland on May 25, is on her way today from this port for Delaware Breakwater, repairs having been made.

The former Mayor then said:

The Foss charges are made out of whole cloth. There is not a scintilla of truth in them. I am just back from New York, and have barely had time to read the Foss letter. I shall at once prepare a formal statement in answer to the charge.

The Renting Season Starts Today

Unless you look up the vacancies that are listed in the Boston American you will probably be unable to find the kind of a suite you want.

The early-comers will get the best of the apartments that are ready for Fall occupancy. Everything indicates that there's going to be a great demand for suites this Fall and everyone won't be able to get what they want.

The "Apartment To Let" columns of the Boston American today are a superior guide to the best vacancies now occurring in Greater Boston.

Turn to the "Apartment" columns now. Don't put it off for another moment. Delay will mean loss to you, and while you are thinking it over some one may be renting the suite you want.

GERMANY ACCEPTS POSITION OF U. S. ON SUBMARINE WARFARE

out first being warned, visited and searched and opportunity afforded for their passengers and crew to escape.

He said that he had not taken up details at this time.

The question of payment for the Lusitania and Arabic victims and of formal disavowal would be discussed by him later with Secretary Lansing.

Count von Bernstorff said he had not received any further details about the Arabic, but that he had been chiefly concerned in clearing up the great issues that have caused the strained relations between the United States and Germany.

It was learned that Count von Bernstorff had been urging his government to accept the viewpoint of the United States ever since he had his conference with President Wilson shortly after the Lusitania was sunk.

WON LEADERS OVER.

He has been supported in his efforts by the liberal elements in Germany, but it was not until within a very brief period that the military and naval powers were won over to his way of thinking.

Ambassador von Bernstorff arrived in Washington early today. He at once called Secretary Lansing on the telephone and asked to make an appointment.

Secretary Lansing agreed to receive him early.

The secretary then called on President Wilson. The latter, it is understood, took the position that there was no longer any cause why Germany should delay disavowing the sinking of the Arabic, since it had been determined that the submarine which sank the steamer was sunk later, and there was no chance of getting a report from its commander.

Secretary Lansing was to tell Count von Bernstorff that this government expected Germany to disavow the sinking of the Arabic at once. It was believed that the German ambassador would guarantee that this would be done.

Count von Bernstorff appeared cheerful and optimistic as he went in to see the secretary. He smiled greetings to all his acquaintances and talked readily to the newspaper men.

"Have you received assurances from your government?" he was asked.

"Naturally I would not have come to Washington unless I had been instructed to do so by my government" was his reply.

Count von Bernstorff conferred with Secretary Lansing just fifteen minutes.

Count von Bernstorff was asked specifically whether he had given assurances that the American position on submarine warfare would be adhered to in the future.

"Secretary Lansing's statement will clear all that up," he said. There was a distinct air of optimism about the White House and State Department after Count von Bernstorff left. It was believed certain that he had made far more specific promises on behalf of his government than had been predicted.

NEW PROTEST TO BRITAIN.

Immediately Count von Bernstorff left the State Department, Secretary Lansing called President Wilson on the telephone. The President is understood to have approved the action of the Secretary of State in insisting that the German assurances be reduced to writing.

As indicating that the administration now believes only some unforeseen complication can interfere with a complete honorable settlement of all differences between the two governments, it was learned that the President has now before him the tentative draft of the new protest to Great Britain. It is expected that this will be completed in a hurry and dispatched to London.

With the German situation serene, the administration, it was authoritatively stated, will now press hard for redress from England for her interference with American trade. In this connection the United States has a great advantage, which it did not have where Germany was concerned. England is utterly dependent upon this country for the major part of her supplies, and while President Wilson has declared that he is opposed to embargo threats, it is known that Secretary Lansing has considered the legality of an embargo as a direct reprisal for acts of oppression against American commerce.

All concessions that England may make to expedite shipments of American-owned goods from Germany and nearby neutral territory will be regarded as unofficial by the United States.

TO MAKE POSITION CLEAR.

That has been decided by the President and Secretary Lansing. Their position is that all such goods and all goods sent direct from neutral countries to United States ports are entitled to unmolested passage, and it is the intention of the administration to make this clear to England in the note that awaits only final approval by the President and the signature "Lansing" to make it official.

Negotiations between the trade advisers of the British embassy and the State Department and the representatives of the American importers are entirely unofficial.

Secretary Lansing, it is learned, has refused to discuss them as head of the State Department and the advice he has given Judge Fleming, who represents the United States has been as counsellor and not as secretary.

The United States takes the position that it has not admitted by word or act the legality of any of the British moves which have interfered with American trade, and in connection with Britain's action in making cotton contraband, it will be contended that this order directly violates the promises made by Sir Edward Grey to Ambassador Page last Fall.

COWLES BABIES, OVER WHOM FIGHT HAS BEEN WAGED

would be contested after all, and that the sensational testimony promised on both sides would come to light, in spite of strenuous efforts to avoid publicity.

It was generally accepted that the announcement that the trial would go on this afternoon meant these conferences had failed and that Dr. Cowles would fight to a finish.

Mrs. Cowles has filed a suit against the doctor, naming four women, while he in a counter suit named two men.

Dr. Cowles' determination to fight now, was indicated in the following statement made by a close friend of his after the announcement that the trial would go on:

"The doctor is just as anxious to protect the name and welfare of his two children as is Mrs. Cowles."

"When all this is over, it will be shown that he has had their interests closely at heart."

OUTLINED PLAN.

The matter of their education was a point at issue which did much to block a settlement. Dr. Cowles had outlined a plan for their education and he was unwilling to see it wrecked."

The conferences between attorneys on either side have discussed various solutions. Yesterday a settlement was practically reached, under the terms of which Dr. Cowles would have the right to see the children regularly, and would practically divide their companionship, though they would be legally in the hands of Mrs. Cowles.

Mr. Cowles was to establish a New Hampshire residence for the purpose of bring near the doctor, so that he might see his daughters frequently.

This arrangement meant that a divorce would have been granted Mrs. Cowles after an uncontested hearing on grounds of so general a nature that sensational testimony need not have been presented.

This plan went to smash on the education obstacle, according to the statements of close friends of Dr. Cowles.

The importance of the case has grown within the past two days as new witnesses have been brought in. These witnesses are of such importance and prominence that in some cases they have retained attorneys, who participated in the conference in an effort to bring about a settlement.

DR. MEAD A WITNESS.

The most prominent of these witnesses was Dr. Edwin D. Mead, head of the World's Peace Foundation. He appeared in Portsmouth today and will be a witness for Dr. Cowles.

Another witness of prominence is Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, Dr. Mead's wife. She also will appear for Dr. Cowles, it is understood.

Still a third witness will be, it is understood, Frank B. Sanborn, the boys of Concord an intimate friend of the doctor and of Sarah Jane Farmer of Greenacre, who has been in Dr. Cowles' sanitarium. Miss Farmer will also be a witness.

Another witness will be Dr. Edward Cowles, a close personal friend of the doctor in the case, a professor of nervous and mental diseases at the Harvard Medical School.

The most interesting witness is expected to be Miss Alice Cowles, the beautiful German governess in the Cowles family, who is accused by Mrs. Cowles in her divorce petition, and who returned to this country from Germany after the war began to answer these charges in the trial.

Besides these there are a dozen or more prominent society women who will appear on one side or another. A large number of fashionably gowned women have waited in court during the first two days of the time set for the trial while the lawyers conferred.

Chief Justice Robert G. Pike of the Rockingham County Superior Court has striven to bring the opposing parties to a settlement, but from this morning's announcement it is supposed he has failed.

CHILDREN IN BROOKLINE.

Little Mary and Harriet Cowles, the daughters, five and four years old, over whom the fight has hinged, are in Brookline at the home of Mrs. H. J. Jacquith, Mrs. Cowles' mother. Mr. and Mrs. Jacquith have been in Portsmouth during the conferences of the past two days.

Mrs. Cowles has declared she will fight to the end to secure what she wants for these children. She said today:

"I have no desire to bring disgrace upon the father of my children, if I can obtain my rights otherwise. If necessity demands, I will take a residence in Portsmouth in order that my children may not be brought under the direct influence of the insane patients at the Cowles Sanitarium. One of the reasons I left Dr. Cowles was that he brought insane patients to our residence and made life unbearable.

The question of alimony does not matter. I am not giving that the slightest consideration.

Dr. Cowles has no property of value, while my devoted mother has the means to give me and my children unlimited financial aid. That in itself is, or ought to be, a strong factor of my getting the care of the children. I simply must have them.

FOSS CHARGES FALSE, FITZ DECLARES

Fitzgerald returned on the steamer Massachusetts, and was met at India Wharf by reporters. To a question then he said:

"I certainly will answer Foss as soon as possible."

They pressed him for an immediate statement, but he said:

"I want you to give me the opportunity to read what he said about me before I make my statement."

The charges were summarized for him, but he refused to comment till he had read the letter in full, when he made a absolute denial of the accusations.

The former Mayor was accompanied on his return from New York by his son-in-law, Joseph P. Kennedy.

The Foss charges, out of which the imbroglio has grown, were contained in a letter to Ernest District Attorney Pelletier.

He charged that the Trades Union Liberty League, of which Dennis D. Driscoll is secretary, was financed and influenced by brewing interests which opposed the Foss prohibition campaign.

He asked Mr. Pelletier to investigate and see if such influence were not a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act.

Incidentally in the letter, Mr. Foss said that while he was Governor, Driscoll and Fitzgerald asked him to appoint Driscoll as prison commissioner, and assured him that if he would appoint Driscoll, the big strike at the E. F. Sturevant Blower Works would be called off.

Driscoll not only denies the charge, but has engaged counsel and threatens to bring suit for defamation of character against the former Governor.

ALPINI CAPTURE MONTE CISTA SUMMIT

By ANDRE BEAUMONT.

Boston American and London Daily Telegraph Exclusive Cable Service.

MILAN, Sept. 1.—The Italians have captured the summit of Monte Cista and command the flank of Fort Pannetta. The Austrians held Cima Cista with considerable forces, as the position was extremely important for them. The Alpini reached the summit and held it.

The Italian artillery in Carso has been exceedingly active within the last few days. The ruin of shells sent into the Austrian trenches turned these into graves. In one trench which the Italians occupied, every man had been killed. Their mangled bodies lay in the body of the trench, which had been enfiladed by the Italian guns from two sides.

The Italian Alpine troops are reported to be fighting for possession of the last of the Austrian trenches on Monte Bonbon. They are fighting with extraordinary bravery, capturing the ground almost inch by inch. The Austrians are now driven almost to their last entrenchments.

As revenge for this loss, the Austrians have begun sending shells into Plezzo, although this town is not yet occupied by the Italian troops.

The relentless bombardment to which the Austrians submitted the towns they have evacuated seems to show they have no hope of regaining them. At Pico di Livinallongo women, children and old men were killed in a hospital in which they had sought refuge.

Borgo in the Val Sugana, which had been evacuated by the Austrian but not occupied by the Italian troops, who hoped to spare the civil population, has suffered.

The dispatch adds that 100,000 troops are concentrated on the Rumanian frontier and that the Austrians have evacuated the frontier city of Predeal, preparatory to closing the frontier.

TO END CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get a 4 ounce bottle of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should try this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

GEN. SCRIVEN IN ROMANCE WITH MISS M'QUADE

A romance that began at Gloucester this Summer came to light today when the engagement was announced of Miss Elisabeth McQuade, daughter of Mrs. Peter McQuade of New Brighton, N. Y., to Brigadier-General George Perrytal Scriven, chief signal officer of the United States Army.

The McQuades were vacationing on Cape Ann, and General Scriven met Miss McQuade while he was inspecting the signal work of the troops along the coast. It was a case of love at first sight, it is said, and close friends of the two families soon learned that a quiet wedding is to take place early next month.

Miss McQuade is a sister of Victor McQuade, master of the Richmond Hunt, and is herself an expert horsewoman. It is this accomplishment that is said to have first attracted the General.

General Scriven is a widower, with two daughters, Katherine and Betty, who will be maids of honor at the wedding. Their mother was Miss Bertha Bragg, daughter of General Edward S. Bragg. General Scriven graduated from West Point in 1878, standing fifth in a large class. His military career has been full of honors, and he is a member of many social, military and hunt clubs. He resides in Washington.

PRESIDENT BUSY ON ARMY AND NAVY PLANS

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Just how much it will cost the United States to bring its army and navy up to date is puzzling President Wilson. This was admitted at the White House today, where it was denied that the sum of $500,000,000 had been fixed arbitrarily and that Congress would be asked to appropriate that amount.

The President is hopeful that it will be possible to make a start on a program for complete preparedness with much less, but it is explained that he will not make up his mind on that subject until he has talked with congressional leaders. The executive expects to spend a good part of the present month in such conferences. He will not limit the exchange of views to members of his own party, but hopes to hear from the leading Republican Senators and Representatives.

EXPECTS BRYAN TO OPPOSE.

The administration expects that party lines will be disregarded when the army and navy plans are considered. He has had it made very plain to him that the opponents of large expenditure for national defence will have the active support of former Secretary of State Bryan and the latter's friends in both the Senate and the House. But the friends of the President say he is convinced that the country at large wants effectual measures taken to protect the United States from war and invasion, and hopes that public pressure will swing into line legislators who in the past have fought for smaller appropriations for the military service.

AT WORK ON MESSAGE.

The President is compiling data for his message to Congress on this subject, despite the fact that the time for the assembling of the legislative branch is still three months off. Part of this data he has compiled from Independent sources and additional facts and figures are to be given by Secretaries Garrison and Daniels within the next few days.

Senator Kern, Democratic leader of the Senate, told the President that the Middle West would not stand for an expenditure of half a billion dollars, and expressed the hope that no such elaborate program would be attempted. The President, it is understood, agreed to do everything possible to limit expenditures, but declined to consider postponing his "preparedness" program for a year.

RABBIT POPULAR IN WOMEN'S NEW CRAZE FOR PETS

Photograph by Moody.
MISS MARGARET GALE AND HER PET RABBIT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The strange craze for astonishing pets has popularized the rabbit, the kitten, the monkey, and even the alligator has found favor as a decorative appendage to be worn and carried in public.

One day—it was last Easter—a woman appeared on Fifth avenue with a live canary imprisoned in a tulle cage on her hat, and since then pet marmosets and other weird pets have found decorative shelter in the arms of modish women.

Perhaps it is an enthusiasm for natural history that has made the young woman of today so interested in animals as pets and not the desire to ornament herself with these symbols of the picturesque. However, the public is gradually becoming accustomed to the strange fad.

MISS GALE'S PET.

Among the strangest of the new pets affected by the modern maid is the rabbit Miss Margaret Gale totes everywhere with her. The rabbit may seem commonplace as a pet, but his mistress gives him credit for a high order of intelligence and declares he is the most lovable of pets.

Miss Anna Evans Dannuch has for a chum a most companionable baby alligator, to which she ascribes great cleverness. The little creature is given much liberty and accepts it. He is much more formidable than the live lizard that is occasionally seen tethered to a woman's wrist.

KITTEN FOR "OUR MARY."

The kitten is being made much of by Miss Mary Anderson, who takes her prize cat with her wherever she goes. The women who have gone in for these strange pets unhesitatingly say they realize that as appendages these quaint little animals add to the charm of their appearance quite as much as fluff and ornament.

In this astonishing element of the present situation New Yorkers need not to be surprised to see pet bears, chipmunks and raccoons on leash when mildly promenades, for the fad is growing.

TWO MEN HELD AS HINGHAM BANDITS

With two suspects under arrest the police of Hingham and surrounding towns today sought a third member of three auto bandits, who, early today, broke into Huntley's garage, Summer street, Hingham, cracked a safe and then, empty-handed, ed before pistol shots by the police.

The two arrested were captured at the point of leveled pistols while speeding through City square, Quincy, half an hour later in their automobile. The police believed that the third man jumped from the machine as it sped toward Quincy. The woods along the route were searched for him today.

BOTH OF SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The prisoners gave their names as James Harmon, twenty-two, and Robert Williams, twenty, both of Syracuse, N. Y. They were locked up charged with breaking and entering. They were later turned over to Chief of Police Washington James of Hingham.

In the Abington District Court today their cases were expected to be continued until Friday pending further investigation of the case by Chief James.

The trio, in their flight from the garage, left $800 worth of automobile tires piled up near one of the doors, according to the police. Nine gallon cans of gasoline were also found outside one of the windows. The men carried off a small safe and a cash register, both empty. These were found in their automobile when the two men were arrested in Quincy.

CLAIM MACHINE STOLEN.

When arrested the men were speeding through City square at high speed. Their machine was later identified as the property of Henry L. Dillingham of Boston.

The latter had but last night reported its theft from the Woodlawn Golf Club grounds, Auburndale, to the Boston police.

The theft of the machine was not charged against the men. Williams, however, was today confronted with an additional charge of operating a machine without a license.

The arrest of the young men was largely due to the quick work of Patrolman Heffernan of the Hingham police. The latter was passing Huntley's garage when he heard a noise inside. As he started to investigate two young men jumped out a rear window and darted toward a nearby automobile.

THREE SHOTS FIRED.

Drawing his pistol, Heffernan ordered them to halt. Instead of doing so, however, the men leaped into the car and immediately shot forward. Thereupon Heffernan opened fire, sending three bullets in their direction. All three shots missed.

Heffernan, who had noticed the number of the machine, hastened to a telephone and notified the police of the surrounding towns to watch out for the car.

Sergeant John T. Larkin, on duty in the Quincy station, detailed Patrolmen Charles Olson and Henry Corbett to watch for the car should it come through Quincy square.

The patrolmen had scarcely reached their posts when a dust-covered machine containing two young men sped into view. As it passed through the square both officers drew their pistols and ordered the motorists to halt. The latter at once obeyed.

ITCHY PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

Red and Hard. Others Became Festered. Could Not Sleep. No Pimples Now.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was working in an oily place and when the oil happened to splash on me I used to feel an itching, and after a while I would rub and I noticed little hard lumps. When I applied anything it made them worse and then there came red spots and then pimples and blackheads. Some of the pimples became red and hard and others became festered. Sometimes they were so itchy that I could not sleep.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I used and finding it gave me some relief I bought more and kept on using them, and I have no pimples now." (Signed) Thomas Ransagan, 46 Newton St., Lawrence, Mass., April 8, 1915.

There is nothing so good for children's skin and scalp troubles as Cadum Ointment.

It is perfectly safe to apply to the tender skin of infants suffering from tetter, rashes, eczema, chafings, and similar troubles that afflict the little ones, all of which, if not carefully treated, are apt to become chronic and mar a baby's beauty. Instant relief is felt as soon as Cadum Ointment is applied. The itching is stopped at once, and so soothing and healing is the effect of this new compound that infants resume natural sleep immediately. Cadum is good for any skin trouble in adults as well as children. 25c. and 25c. a box at druggists.

FIRE DESTROYS PORTLAND, ME., CANNERY

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 1.—The five-story brick canning factory of the Twitchell & Champlin Co. canners and wholesale grocers, on Merrill's wharf, off Commercial street, was destroyed early today by a fire, for which three alarms were sounded. A. M. Mennish, member of the firm, said after the fire:

"The damage will exceed $150,000. We believe that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion in the soldering room on the first floor."

The entire city fire department, which responded on a third or general alarm, made a successful fight to keep the fire from sweeping away the entire plant and other property on Merrill's wharf.

The department was aided by Lieutenant F. A. Nichols and crew of twenty-five from the United States coastguard cutter Onsipee, which took up its duties at this station on Sunday. The cutter crew manned hose lines and was of great assistance.

The canning factory was 700 feet long, and stood between a packing house and a warehouse. The adjoining buildings were slightly damaged. The wooden office building was not damaged.

The fire was discovered at 12:30 by Fred Getchell, night watchman. By the time the apparatus arrived the building was a furnace.

On the first and second floors were vats containing 15,000 gallons of molasses.

The fire was under control at 4 o'clock.

CHAUFFEUR HELD AS WITNESS TO SHOOTING OF TWO IN AUTO

BELIEVE ATTACK PLANNED.

The police believe that the attack was deliberately planned. It was well known in Providence that the doctor, every Tuesday and Thursday night, drove over the Newport road, always accompanied by the maid.

The spot where the automobile "stalled," about 100 yards from the road which runs to the Rhode Island Country Club, was the loneliest place in the whole route.

The theory is advanced that some enemy of the doctor, of of the doctor's maid, deliberately planned the murder for revenge. The idea that the shooting had robbery for a motive was abandoned when it was learned that the murder car did not stop at all, but immediately speeded away, toward West Barrington, after the last shot was fired.

MOHR SOCIETY DOCTOR.

Dr. Mohr lived at No. 382 Elmwood avenue, and had an office at No. 36 Stewart street, as well as an office in Newport. He was one of the best known physicians in town, and had an extensive practice in society circles in Newport.

He married Miss Elizabeth F. Blair, an attractive department store clerk of Providence. The first Christmas after the wedding he bought the $50,000 Newport villa Montpelier as a Christmas present for his bride.

The couple were considered very happily married. The first news of any domestic trouble between the doctor and his wife came in the filing of a suit for damages against the doctor by Mary McConville, Mrs. Mohr's maid. Miss McConville made serious charges against the doctor, but failed to win her suit for damages.

COUPLE SEPARATED.

It was then that Mrs. Mohr left the doctor's home. She is now living at No. 1 Reservoir avenue, in the family of Arthur A. Barney. To her friends she has always declared that it was the doctor that wished a divorce, but that on account of her religion she objected, although she refused to live with him.

Miss Burger, who has been employed by Dr. Mohr as a maid and secretary for the past three or four years, is twenty-eight. She is the daughter of August Burger, a saloon keeper who lives at No. 121 Calhoun avenue, Providence.

The chauffeur, Healis, had been employed by the physician since May. Although the police have been looking up his record previous to his coming to work for Dr. Mohr, they have not as yet been able to learn anything about him.

Healis declares that he saw no automobile. He insists that all he knew was that several shots were fired from the back of the car. He said he saw the flashes. He is positive that he did not see or hear any automobile, either before or after the attack.

The West Barrington police, however, have secured witnesses who saw the doctor's car and declared that another car was following it. Immediately after the shooting they saw an automobile speeding toward West Barrington. They paid little attention then, believing the shots they had heard were the explosive sounds of an auto engine.

Although Healis was grilled until early today by the West Barrington police, he stuck to his original story.

Mrs. Mohr, with her two children, a boy of eight and a girl of five, live only a stone's throw from the Elmwood avenue home of the doctor. The doctor's house is easily visible from the steps of the Barney home. Since her separation from the doctor she has lived in the immediate neighborhood.

GERMANS TWICE REPULSED IN THE VOSGES

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Renewed German attacks in the Vosges, resulting in the repulse of the Kaiser's troops at Lingekopf and Schratsmaennele, are reported in today's official communique, issued at the French War Office. In their attacks the Germans again made use of shells containing asphyxiating gases.

The artillery duel between the opposing armies is increasing in violence. The Germans have opened a lively bombardment of the entire French front.

The text of the official communique follows:

"Some artillery duels were reported in the course of the night around Neuville St. Vaast, in the region of Roye, and in that of Auberive-Sur-Suippe.

"In the Argonne, during the day of yesterday, there was a sharp cannonade in the north of Fontaine Madame et at Haute Chevauchee.

"The night was quiet in the Vosges, after a bombardment with shells containing asphyxiating gas. The enemy launched last evening a violent attack against our trenches at Linge and Schratzmaennele. We maintained our positions. In the middle of the night a new German attack was likewise repulsed."

8 RUSSIAN DIVISIONS ESCAPE TRAP; TEUTON LOSSES ENORMOUS

By International News Service.

GENEVA, Sept. 1. — Extricating themselves from a trap set by Field Marshal von Mackensen and Prince Leopold of Bavaria, eight Russian divisions (approximately 144,000 men) escaped from the forces rapidly surrounding them and joined the field army defending Grodno, according to a dispatch from a correspondent of the Tribuna sent from Radom, Poland. The Russians had to fight their way through the German lines to the north of them.

The same correspondent says that the Germans are suffering terrific losses.

"The Russian troops in the Bielsk region," he says, "are incessantly counter-attacking their enemy inflicting a loss of 15,000 daily between Brest-Litovsk and Bielsk and 20,000 daily between Bielsk and Grodno. Before occupying Narew, which the Russians evacuated, the Germans lost 20,000 killed in one afternoon."

Spain Aroused Over Sinking of Esadera

By International News Service.

MADRID, Sept. 1.—The crew of the Spanish ship Esadera, sunk by a German submarine, arrived at Bilbao today. The Germans have thus far offered no explanation for the destruction of the Esadera. The Liberal press demands that the Spanish government take energetic measures at once.

Russia Gives Jews Protection of Cities

By International News Service.

BERNE, Sept. 1.—Herman Bernstein, the noted author and editor of the National Jewish newspaper, "The Day," has received the following telegraphic statement from the Russian Premier, M. Goremykine:

"The Council of Ministers, in view of the extraordinary circumstances of wartimes and until a general revision in the established order of regulations concerning Jews has been made, has authorized the Home Minister to permit Jews to abide in the cities, out of the lines of their general settlement, except in the capitals and localities belonging to the Cossack settlements."

2,000,000 POLES ARE REFUGEES, IN DIRE NEED

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 1.—More than 2,000,000 refugees from Poland and Western Russia have poured into the interior, furnishing the government with an enormous problem in its efforts to care for them. Three-quarters of these fugitives are aged men, women and children unable to support themselves by work, and they must be supported by charity.

Most of the refugees from the war districts carried with them into the interior only such clothing as they could wear and food for a few days' use.

Tens of thousands are already on the verge of starvation, though the Russian government and every charitable organization in the country are doing their utmost to extend succor.

The Czarina and the royal princesses have sent large contributions to various towns to be expended for the sufferers. This will serve only as a temporary relief however. The government recognizes that caring for the refugees is not a matter of a week, but of months—possibly of years.

Even if the war were to end tomorrow the task of caring for the refugees would not be removed. In its retreat before the Germans the Russian army has laid waste the entire country through which its pursuers must pass. Whole towns have been destroyed with dynamite when there has not been time to accomplish the same work with the torch.

Lynn Dentist Is Drugged and Robbed

The police are searching for the assailants of Dr. John Hogan, a Lynn dentist, who was found unconscious, early today in the rear of Hotel Somerset, Lynn. For some hours, after he was found, the doctor was unable to tell what happened to him. Later he recovered sufficiently to say that he spent last evening at Winthrop returning to Lynn about midnight. He walked up the street with two strangers and remembers nothing after that. He believes he is the victim of either knockout drops or chloroform. His assailants robbed him of $55 and a valuable pearl pin.

'Canadian Air' Caused Frost in New England

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—That cold streak which swept across the Middle West and Eastern States, and today is leaving a farewell touch in New England, was caused by a large movement of "Canadian air" southwards.

That was the explanation handed out here today at the United States Weather Bureau.

"A tremendous air movement started in the Northeast and Canada," an official said, "This moved down first over the Middle Western States and then across the East, and is dying out today in New England. A slight frost was reported from the New England States today.

"In the Middle West the mercury again is climbing back towards normal."

Baldwin, fifty-four, No. 17 Pleasant place, Cambridge, was struck by a semi-convertible car near Fells avenue, on the Fellsway, Medford, about 8 o'clock this morning, sustaining a fractured skull, a broken arm and concussion of the brain. She was dead when picked up. She was on her way to work in Boston.

The car, which was returning from Forest street, was nearing its final stop, the Salem street station, when the woman started to cross the tracks, and before the motorman could put on the brakes the car struck her, and she was thrown several feet.

Motorman Alfred Hayes was detained by the police.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT BARNSTABLE FAIR

Today is Governor's Day at the Barnstable Fair.

His Excellency's arrival, coupled with the opening of the horse show, is expected to bring out one of the biggest crowds in the history of these justly famous Cape Cod events.

The Governor, accompanied by several members of his staff, is due at the grounds in the early forenoon. He will be the guest of former Congressman Thomas C. Thacher throughout the day. In the afternoon he will deliver an address from the stand in front of the race track. In the evening he will dine at the Thacher home, Yarmouth Point.

With favorable weather conditions today will see a great outpouring of society folk to witness the opening of the horse show, the big event of the fair. Many blue-ribbon winners have been entered and the show promises to be a big success. It is being held this year as a new feature of the Barnstable fairs.

Yesterday was "Children's Day," and the grounds were thronged with the little folks and their elders from morning until night. Baseball games between the Falmouth and Yarmouth High School nines and the "Hyannis and Sandwich teams, contestants for the Cape championship, were features of the day. Hyannis won the second game and Falmouth the first.

The day was marred by an accident to Miss Mary Harris and "Bill" Tennebring, the "dare-devil" motorcyclists, who were scheduled to give an exhibition in connection with the opening of the fair. They were thrown from their machine by the explosion of a tire as they began their performance. Both were cut about the face, head and hands. They were treated on the grounds by Boy Scouts.

Best Treatment for Catarrh S. S. S. Removes the Cause

Specialists in Catarrh troubles have agreed that it is a infection of the blood. The laboratories of the S. S. S. Co., at Atlanta, have proven it. Once you get your blood free from impurities—cleansed of the Catarrhal poisons, which it is now a prey to because of its unhealthy state—then you will be relieved of Catarrh—the dripping in the throat, hawking and spitting, raw sores in the nostrils, and the disagreeable bad breath. It was caused, in the first place, because your impoverished blood was easily infected. Possibly a slight cold or contact with someone who had a cold. But the point is—don't suffer with Catarrh—it is not necessary. The remedy S. S. S., discovered over fifty years ago, tested, true and tried, is always obtainable at any drug store. It has proven its value in thousands of cases. It will do so in your case. Get S. S. S. at once and begin treatment. If yours is a long standing case, be sure to write the S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for free expert medical advice. They will tell you how this purely vegetable blood tonic cleanses the impurities from the blood by literally washing it clean. They will prove to you that thousands of sufferers from Catarrh, after consistent treatment with S. S. S., have been freed from the trouble and all its disagreeable features and restored to perfect health and vigor. Don't delay the treatment. Take S. S. S. at once.

AMERICAN SHIP HELD UP BY GERMANS

The American square-rigger Ruth Stark came into Boston today from Liverpool with a story of having been held up by a German submarine, 150 miles southwest of Cape Clear.

Two English destroyers were within three miles, the captain of the Stark said, but they made no effort to sink the submarine, although the captain thought they could easily have done so.

Captain J. E. Rawding of the Stark told this story:

"On August 3, when we were 150 miles south southwest of Cape Clear, well out into the open Atlantic, a German submarine came to the surface and fired a shot across our bows.

"It was blowing hard, and we could not come up in the wind. We hurried as fast as we could to put her back, but before we could reduce sail sufficiently, the submarine fired another shot.

"We put her back then at the risk of taking out the masts. The submarine came up under our stern, read our name and port, saw the flag painted on our side, and after a short conversation to determine our nationality, allowed us to proceed.

"There were two English destroyers within three miles at the time. They could have sunk the submarine without difficulty. Why they didn't, I cannot understand."

The Stark left Boston, May 12, for Liverpool with lumber, lay there seven weeks before getting a chance to unload, and sailed for Boston thirty-one days ago. Twenty-two days of fog and rain delayed her.

CONFIRM STORY OF OROZCO'S KILLING

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The Department of Justice today received official confirmation of the news that General Pascual Orozco, noted Mexican revolutionist, had been killed by Americans near El Paso, Texas.

The killing of General Orozco was highly dramatic according to details received here today.

The Mexican raider was surrounded with his men as they camped in a canyon between the Eagle and Lonesome Mountains. Twenty-four American ranchmen, customs officials and troopers of the Thirteenth Cavalry formed the posse that killed the Mexican.

Word was received over the Big Bend country by rural telephone on Sunday that the raiders were in the vicinity and immediately all the ranch houses were in a state of activity.

Ten ranchers set out to trail Orozco and at every ranch recruits joined the posse. The chase was through the wildest part of the Big Bend country.

The Mexicans finally were rounded up in the canyon. Scouts sent ahead reported that Orozco and his men were around a campfire with their horses hobbled at some distance away.

The posse then closed in and the killing of the leader followed. All of the men of the Big Bend section were under arms today, fearing that Mexicans might attempt a raid in reprisal for Orozco's death. It was believed here that Orozco was attempting to organize disaffected Mexicans of all factions into a nationalist party with the object of invading Texas.

Appeal has been made from Sierra Blanca for more troops to guard the border in that vicinity.

DEFEAT OF NILES A BIG SURPRISE

FOREST HILLS, N. J., Sept. 1.—Now for the second day's sport in the thirty-fifth annual championship tournament of the National Lawn Tennis Association on the turf courts of the West Side Club.

H. H. Hackett of New York, former holder of the doubles title with Alexander, went down to defeat before William J. Johnston of San Francisco in straight sets in one of yesterday's most interesting matches.

Maurice E. Mcloughlin of San Francisco, the internationalist and former champion, drew Ernest F. Kuhn of Germany as his opponent and vanquished the foreign racquet wielder, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

R. Norris Williams did not appear upon the courts, as his opponent, Adrian Riker, defaulted.

In a brilliant contest, lasting practically two hours, Frederick B. Alexander of New York, downed Nat. W. Niles of Boston, 7—5, 7—5, 8—6.

Ward Dawson of Los Angeles had to go five full sets to win from J. D. McKay of New York. Clarence J. Griffin another Californian, disposed of A. D. Thayer of Philadelphia in straight sets.

E. H. Whitney, a former Harvard star, was in good form and won from Harold Throckmorton, the scholastic star, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1. T. H. Pell of New York George M. Church of Princeton, Dean Mathey of Cranford, N. J., Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, Karl H. Behr of New York and Robert Leroy of New York also registered notable victories.

BRAVES OUT FOR FOURTH SHUTOUT

By RIGHT FIELD.

The Braves are out today to keep the Reds from crossing the plate in the final clash of the series, and thereby let them down without a run in four games. Having shut the foe out thrice to the tune of 2 to 0 the Tribesmen would just as soon the final figures today had the same complexion.

Manager Buck Herzog of the Cincinnatis, however, is going right after today's game. He wants to nurse the team's percentage as high as possible, and also give his youngsters plenty of practice in standing right up to the celebrities in the Tenor circuit. If the Reds can jam a run across today, by hook or by crook, they will, for they are fighting mad about their trio of humiliations.

Ragan, the ex-Robin, having stood aside while "Tenga" Hughes went in yesterday to smear the whitewash on the visitors, wants to display his brand of kalsomine today, and will undoubtedly get the chance.

"Bill" James, who got such a fine reception from the "fans" when he reported back from the layoff that has done his wing so much good, may possibly get today's assignment if it is decided to give him something easier than the Robins, who get here tomorrow, on his first trip out.

"Big Bill" looked pretty fit as he stood in the coacher's patrol off first and also while he warmed up a bit during the double bill. His return gives the Braves an added edge and a pitching staff that ought to do the city proud.

Manager Herzog is suspected of designs at sending Fred Toney, his mountainous prize hurler, back at the Braves again in this series. McKenery is about the only other hurler likely to be seen.

Herzog was greatly disappointed when Toney did not land Saturday's affair. He pitched a tidy game, as all will admit, but there is no gainsaying the fact that some runs would have helped his cause.

Manager Buck himself got three of the five hits the Reds made that day and Rudolph saw to it that nothing happened to cause our old Walpole street friend to menace the platter. Toney himself wants to give the Braves another go and he will probably get his wish.

"Pete" Compton will probably be seen in right field for the Braves again today, after the good account he gave of himself in the second section of the double-header. His three hits and the two runs he scored made him look better than he has shown on the home field so far.

He was a bit under the weather when the Braves got back from the road, but he looks and acts like a ball player on the basis of his latest day's work.

JACK BARRY DAY OVER IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—The Red Sox are in town for four combats with the Athletics. The maiden matinee is carded for this afternoon at Shibe Field and the series comes to a close Saturday. Then Bill Carrigan beats it to Boston with his gallant outfit for a stand of exactly three weeks.

This is Jack Barry Day and perhaps it will serve as the magnet to bring out the first and only big weekday throng "Connie" Mack has observed on the home lot all Summer. Jack thus far has not been seen in his Boston trappings by the local "fans."

The Red Sox will be at Fenway Park from September 6, Labor Day, until September 27. After the gambolling here, and the twenty-one days' stay at home, they will show in Washington and New York and then be through their season's labors.

George Foster is Carrigan's first pick for slab duty today, with "Babe" Ruth the second choice. As "Connie" Mack has been working so many rookers of late weeks it remains to be seen what hurler he will send to the firing line. Wyckoff and Bressler are Mack's morning nominations.

Carrigan is claiming the flag for the Red Sox. He is also banking upon making a clean sweep here, and figures that before the Detroit-Chicago series is over, the White Sox will own at least one verdict.

"Stuffy" McInnis is down to show on first for the Athletics today. That means Mack will have his strongest possible lineup in the field, though as the former Champions only bagged two of their ten games on a recent western whirl it is plainly evident they are anything but ferocious right now.

Hardwick Ready to Aid Ingram with Navy Team

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 1.—A very promising squad of sixty members of the new fourth class at the Naval Academy was on the field yesterday afternoon, and a good drill in elementary work, including passing and signals, was given by Coach Ingram. Hardwick, the Harvard player, who will be his chief helper, has arrived.

The squad is specially strong in heavy men. The chief finds are Gilman, who played on the Cornell and Colgate teams, and E. C. Smith, an old Sewanee player. Schilhauer and Cooley, each weighing about 190, are from the enlisted ranks of the navy. Von Hinberg and Olsen did good punting.

Braves Now Only Three Points Behind Brooklyn

The Braves were the only team in the National League to come through with both ends of a double-header yesterday, the Phillies, Robins and Cubs each falling down on half their contracts for the day. As a result Brooklyn stood still in the average table and the Braves moved up to within three points of second place.

This same second place will be fought for between the Braves and Robins with a vengeance, beginning tomorrow at Braves Field, after which the Braves take to the road.

When Evers Led Cubs He Fired Young Mr. Nehf

"Don't you remember me?" Arthur Nehf, George Stallings' nifty young Southpaw, asked Captain Jawn Evers at practice a few mornings ago.

"No; I can't recollect as having seen you before," replied the Trojan.

"Why, you had me in Chicago the year you managed the Cubs," was Nehf's comeback. "Don't you remember, I reported to you one morning and you fired me in the afternoon?"

"Well, I'm a son of a gun; sure, and you're the same kid. No wonder Murphy didn't keep me," buzzed back Evers.

And it's the truth. Nehf, found by a Cub scout when attending Rose "Poly" in Terre Haute, was shipped to Evers at a stage when the Trojan was painfully shy of slab talent. He gave Art a short work-out and then decided he wouldn't do—just yet.

By "CHICK" EVANS.

Four Times Western Open Champion and American's Expert in Week.

DETROIT, Sept. 1.—In my match with Ned Sawyer of Wawaton yesterday I was defeated by the handsome margin of 6 up and 4, and my opponent richly deserved his victory. He had a long score to settle and he settled it with a vengeance.

Sawyer played a fine game and from the critic's standpoint it may be said that I failed because I could not manage the little calp shot on the green and also because I was not putting well. But that part of it is an old story.

Sawyer will play Gardner White today. White won his way to the second round by defeating Paul Hunter.

TWO CHICAGOANS LEFT.

Of the five Chicagoans, Sawyer and R. A. Gardner alone remain, the latter coming through by the small margin of one hole after a close and exciting game with Louis Bredin of Detroit.

The match between Fownes and Standish was close and interesting and the local man won on the thirty-seventh green. Fownes was 3 down at noon, but he cut down this lead and forced the Detroit man to an extra hole.

Hunter had a disheartening experience with White, finishing the morning round 6 down. He made a gallant uphill fight in the afternoon, but the lead his opponent got early in the match proved too much for him to overcome.

EAST IN IN GOOD.

The Eastern champions were somewhat luckier than the players from the West and South, for we worked hard whether the road led to victory or defeat, while they had victory thrust upon them. As an interesting example, I found myself with a medal of 74, 2 down at noon to Sawyer, who was around in 72, the lowest score of the tournament so far, while Travers, with an approximate 72, stood 11 up on a man whose score I have not sufficient imagination to guess. Ouimet, too, walked, in the main, easily away from his opponent. Altogether it is the most extraordinary tournament in which I ever took part from the standpoint of pairings and demonstrates as never before the great superiority of the Western method.

AFTER GREAT BATTLE LEWIS IS GIVEN DECISION OVER BRITTON

Atlas A. A. Results.

Ted (Kid) Lewis, England, awarded Referee Haley's decision over Jack Britton, Chicago; 12 rounds.
Mike Crowley, Malden, defeated Charley Sheppard, New York; 6 rounds.
Al Thomas, New York, defeated Walter Butler, Revere; 6 rounds.
Teddy Murphy, Boston, drew with Young Cooper, Providence; 6 rounds.

IN the opinion of Referee "Patsy" Haley, brought over from New York to serve as the third party in the ring in last night's fancy fuss between Jack Britton of Chicago and Ted (Kid) Lewis of England at the Atlas A. A., the British boy did the superior milling. Hence the Haley decision went to Lewis, though judging by the demonstration that followed the verdict was not a particularly popular one.

Despite the fact that Lewis is generally rated just about the speediest and most scientific workman of his pounds and inches now earning a livelihood in the Queensberry game, and Britton has always ranked in the first flight as a flashy, showy boxer, as well as a hard hitter, the bout in many spots, especially in the first two rounds, was as tough and as rough as could be pulled by two longshoremen.

A long, tedious pow-wow between the rival fighters and their managers, Jimmy Johnston and Danny Morgan, and the ring officials, after a "faint" first round had gone some forty-five seconds, served to set the stage for a noisy opening, a noise that rose right together at the bell, and clashing in a couple of brisk exchanges, Britton motioned to Haley that Lewis was not attired according to Hoyle.

WHAT Britton objected to was a rubber protector the Britisher was wearing over his upper set of teeth. It was the same sort of contrivance the catchers used in the long ago, before the mask was invented. Britton claimed that the protector deadened the jar of his punch and that Lewis wouldn't be cheating one mite worse were he to wear a chest protector and earmuffs.

Haley beckoned to the chief timekeeper to ring the bell. Then he started to make a speech and tell why hostilities had ceased so suddenly. "Patsy" was only allowed to mutter some six or eight words when Messrs. Johnston and Morgan, as well as the two flocks of seconds, were in the ring. Reportorially speaking, there was a helluva time for some ten or fifteen minutes.

Milah Murray and Alec McLean tried to pacify Morgan and Britton, but all to no avail. Then they attempted to induce Johnston to have the protector oozed from Lewis' mouth, but again they were balked.

The upshot of it all was that Lewis finally threw the "cheaters" down to the canvas and cried, "Let the battle proceed." Morgan was there first in the scuffle that followed the mouth-gear, and just when Danny had it one of Lewis' seconds all but pulled it out of his hands. So Morgan cast the band far into the crowd.

AS a result of the long interruption the big house was up on its toes when the scrap was on in earnest. Right away Britton and Lewis tore into each other, throwing all science to the winds.

Inside of a minute Lewis went down from a half-slip and half punch, and while on the floor Britton swung flush to his jaw. The Johnston corner claimed "foul," but as the walloping didn't hurt Lewis, Haley bade the bout proceed.

Despite a lot of rough work in the clinches, the set-to finally settled down into a sensible, hope-to-die bout. Most of the members thought Britton run up a big shade in the middle rounds.

All the damage was administered by Britton, and Lewis was a badly marked up boy long before the twelfth round was reached.

LEWIS might have held his own from the seventh round to the eleventh, but Britton certainly outfought and out-hurried him in the final stanzas; in fact, Jack sent the Britisher back staggering from the effects of a stiff left jab to the face, followed by a crashing right to the body, in the midst of the assay.

As for the race, Lewis might have set it. At that, Britton was consistently landing somewhere with his left. Then Jack also brought his right over pretty often.

While no official weights were announced, it is reported that Lewis scaled in at 128 pounds at 6 o'clock and that Britton did not weigh in at all.

Looking Backward.

Today is the ninth anniversary of the great 24-inning game between the Boston and Philadelphia Americans, which was played at the old Huntington avenue grounds, September 1, 1906. Coombs pitched for Philadelphia and Harris for Boston. Philadelphia won, 4 to 1.

By HAL COFFMAN

WHO said "They never come back"?

Pooh! pooh! Look at this bird Coombs.

Back in 1912 John was pitching for the Athletics in the world's series against the Giants. He turned suddenly to throw to first base. As he did so his spikes caught on the pitcher's rubber, with the result that he twisted his back. He was badly hurt, but stuck it out a little longer and finally had to leave the game and be put to bed. But this was only a forerunner of something worse, for at one time it was feared he would never walk again, having developed a rare disease—typhoid of the spine—which he thinks was contracted by an insect bite while on a Southern training trip. For months he was in bed with weights attached to his feet to stretch his spine and allow it to heal. The attending physicians never expected him to recover, but he fooled them. Connie Mack kept him for two years in remembrance of work that he had once done, and finally gave him his unconditional release.

Last January he signed with Brooklyn, and now look at the old kid go. And if he isn't careful he is apt to be in another world's series—a thing that hasn't happened in Brooklyn since Ned Hanlon held the tiller of the old ship.

Probably Coombs' most notable stunt, and where he got the name of "Iron John," was the winning of a twenty-four inning game at the old Huntington avenue grounds in 1906.

His only bad habits are smoking a black old pipe and playing golf.

McVea Meets Wills in Next Atlas Show

Sam McVea, the burly negro boxer from California, winner over Sam Langford and "Sandy" Ferguson in his two most recent bouts at the Atlas A. A., meets Harry Wills, the big brunette from New Orleans, in the big bout next Tuesday night.

Terry Brooks and Charley Beyers clash in the semi-windup, while Young Stone and Young Fitzsimmons and Al Terry and "Duke" Fuller meet in the two preliminary events.

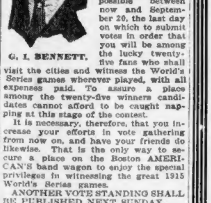
Providence Has Real Live Wire in Big Series Contest



G. I. BENNETT.

The time for the greatest sporting event of the year, THE WORLD'S SERIES GAMES, will soon be with us.

The one important thing for the Boston AMERICAN'S World's Series candidates to do well during these few remaining days of this contest is to accumulate every vote possible between now and September 20, the last day on which to submit votes in order that you will be among the lucky twenty-five fans who shall visit the cities and witness the World's Series games wherever played, with all expenses paid. To assure a place among the twenty-five winners candidates cannot afford to be caught napping at this stage of the contest.

It is necessary, therefore, that you increase your efforts in vote gathering from now on, and have your friends do likewise. That is the only way to secure a place on the Boston AMERICAN'S band wagon to enjoy the special privileges in witnessing the great 1913 World's Series games.

ANOTHER VOTE STANDING SHALL BE PUBLISHED NEXT SUNDAY.

George I. Bennett, 128 Stewart street, Providence, R. I., is a busy World's Series fan, who is making every effort in piling up votes to land among the winners at the finish.

RING RESULTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The championship of New York is the property of Charley Weinert of Newark. At Madison Square Garden he gave Jim Savage, the pride of Oregon, a terrible beating in their ten-round shindig.

BIDDEFORD, Sept. 1.—"Mickey" Breen of Malden outpointed "Patsy" Green of Lawrence in a fairly fast six-round bout. "Kid" Larrabee and Young Driscoll, both of Biddeford, went to a draw.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the fortieth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

You may have noticed a caterpillar, walking along a blade of grass and having the appearance, with all his legs going, and his head down, of being very much in earnest about reaching his destination, all at once pause, and raise up the whole front half of his body, as if he were trying to imitate a kangaroo. The fact is, he is attempting to find out where he is, and whither bound. It may be the wrong blade of grass, or it is inclined in the wrong direction.

This may lessen your estimate of his intellect; but nevertheless, the caterpillar is doing something which you would not find it easy to accomplish. That front half of his body is at right angles, or more, to the part still adhering to the grass, and he can wave it to and fro sidewise into the bargain. Of course, he is not a vertebrate animal; still, a man does not like to be outdone by a caterpillar.

We have already measured ourselves against the goose; let us now see how near we can come to rivalling the caterpillar.

Lie flat on your stomach and extend your arms behind, till your hands rest on the back of the waist, just at the point where the buttocks begin. Keep them there throughout the movement; you may double your fists if you like. The exercise affects the buttocks, and is one of the best for that purpose, for the upper part of them especially.

Now, then, up with the chest and upper half of the body. Curve the spine upward and backward as far as it will go. It will stop very far short of making a right angle with your legs, which, of course, are stretched out straight, the toes being bent in forward. The effort takes you in the small of the back, at the very base of the spine. Bend the head back to help out the curve and push up as far as you can go. You can do better than that—make another effort! At least get your chest and ribs off the mattress. Well, if that be your limit, let yourself down again, not too rapidly; but never again despise a caterpillar.

Repeat this movement twenty times and put your soul into it. It will agreeably counteract any fatigue you may feel from the sitting-up exercise and enable you to sympathize with the down-trodden masses of effete Europe.

WORLDS MOTOR-PACED CHAMPIONSHIP (100 Kilometers)—George Wiley, America, vs. Victor Linart, Belgium, vs. Clarence Carman, America, vs. Georges Seres, France, vs. Tony Colombatto, Italy.

Amateur and Professional Events.

Five of the greatest pace followers of the present day will clash in a 100-kilometer (62¼ miles) race at the Revere Cycle Track tonight for the purpose of deciding the motor-paced championship of the world.

The riders and the countries they will represent follows: George Wiley, America; Victor Linart, Belgium; Clarence Carman, America; Georges Seres, France, and Tony Colombatto, Italy.

This is not only the biggest attraction ever booked for the beach oval, but the first world's title event as well. Berlin was to have staged the championship, but the war brought it to this country. Almost immediately five of the leading American tracks entered a bid for the race, and in the hot scramble that followed Revere won the award and the honor of staging the premier cycling contest of the year.

Wiley is the logical choice, although the general opinion is that the race will be a toss-up between the whole field. This is conceding every man an even chance.

The championship will be decked off with many novel features, including the parade of nations, in which every competitor will ride around the track, carrying his national flag. Mayor Curtis will present a handsome bouquet and the title medal to the winner.

Lee Axworthy Third in Yonkers Feature

YONKERS, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Horsemen today are talking over the decisive defeat of Lee Axworthy, the noted four-year-old colt, in the 2:05 trotting event, the feature of the first day's Grand Circuit card at Empire City track. Peter Scott won the $5,000 event in straight heats, with Worthy Prince second and Lee Axworthy third. Lee Axworthy finished second to Peter Scott in the first heat, but that position was gained by Worthy Prince in the last two heats.

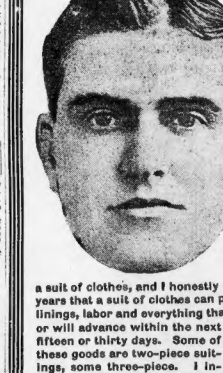
Cloths That Might Be Used In $20 $25 $30 $35 Suits To Order $7.75



I have taken a general account of stock in all my stores and find thousands of yards of single-suit patterns, some were last Fall's goods, some were the ends from the different tailors whose stock I have purchased this past season. Two weeks ago I purchased the stock of I. Goldstein, 76 Summer St., which he sold to high-priced tailors, who, in turn, made them up for their customers for prices ranging $30.00 to $35.00. Some few weeks before that I bought out the stock of David Low, recently demised, in Hartford, Connecticut, who sold clothes from $25.00 to $50.00, suit or overcoat, and a number of other tailors and wholesalers whose names I am not permitted to use in advertising. These goods are absolutely all wool or worsted. Not a yard of this stock was ever built to put into a suit to sell under $20.00. I have blue serges, black unfinished worsteds, fancy cheviots, Glen Urquhart plaids and tartan checks, everything and anything that would make a business man a suit of clothes, and I honestly believe that this will be the last time for the next 25 years that a suit of clothes can possibly be built within $5.00 of this price. Woolens, linings, labor and everything that goes into the making of a suit of clothes have advanced or will advance within the next fifteen or thirty days. Some of these goods are two-piece suitings, some three-piece. I include in this sale ten pieces of United States Worsted Company's blue serge. In all the advertisements you read in the paper I have never seen this goods advertised under $20.00, either ready-made or custom. My price while these ten pieces last will be, Suit to Order....

Cowardice in Petticoats

The Many Feminine Privileges of Which Women Unworthily Take Advantage

By DOROTHY DIX

We hear a great deal about the privileges of women, which the anti-suffragists mournfully inform us, will be forfeited when women get the ballot. So far as I have ever been able to ascertain, these special privileges of women include nothing except the right to be pretty nearly everything that is most despicable in a human being.

There are those who consider that because a woman is a woman she has the privilege of being a liar and a cheat, a grafter and a loafer and a parasite, and still to maintain her position in decent society. There are even women who hold to this theory and who capitalize this low view of their sex.

They trade on being women, and are thus immune, to a certain degree, from the punishment that a man would receive if he acted as they do. They do not fight in the open. They carry on a secret guerrilla warfare, hiding from attack behind their skirts.

Their is the cowardice of petticoats, than which there is nothing more contemptible in the world, because it takes advantage of what is noblest and most generous in man.

THE CHANGE OF MIND

"Consider, if you please, what we call woman's privilege of changing her mind. Does that, in plain terms, mean anything more or less than an utter lack of truth, and honor, and reliability? The proudest boast of a man is that his word is as good as his bond, and among gentlemen a gentleman's agreement is held far more morally binding than any signed contract.

But how many women do you know whose word is worth a bent pin? A woman will give you her solemn promise to do thus and so, and the next minute she will utterly repudiate it. If you make a contract with a woman, you want it iron bound and copper rivetted, and then, like as not, if something better offers, she will regard it merely as a scrap of paper, and consider you a cruel brute if you expect her to live up to her agreement.

"Oh, I've got a right to change my mind. That's a woman's privilege," the woman will plead in self extenuation. But she knows better. She knows she is doing a dishonorable thing. She's taking advantage of her sex to be a welcher.

It is this same cowardice of petticoats that keeps women from playing the game of life squarely.

GETTING AWAY WITH IT

Stand in line to buy tickets at any theatre window, or at a railroad wicket when there is a rush, and there will invariably be two or three women, generally finely dressed, important looking women, who will walk deliberately to the head of the line and plead their way in and get waited upon before anybody else. They are perfectly well aware that they are trespassing on the rights of other people and taking an unfair advantage of everyone else, but they are also aware that they can get away with it by virtue of their sex and their good clothes, and they do it.

After women have gone out into the world and wrestled with it for their own living, they learn to be human beings as well as women, and then they begin to show some consideration for other people. But for colossal, adamantine selfishness, and pigishness, the average well-to-do society woman is Exhibit A.

It's the cowardice of petticoats that makes so many women take advantage of their sex to cheat their employers. In his soul, every man who has the least spark of chivalry in his nature is sorry for the women who have to earn their own living. He doesn't want to be hard on his women employes, and they take advantage of this to be a little late in coming to work of a morning, to lay off for trivial allments, and to give him just as poor work as he will put up with.

THE WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

Not long ago a young girl who was dismissed from an office because of her incompetency made this naive comment on the situation:

"Why didn't Mr. Blank tell me I would have to do my work better? I can do as good work as anybody when I try, but I just thought he'd stand for the way I was doing."

Plenty of women take this same view of the situation.

But the worst illustration of the cowardice of petticoats is exhibited in the family circle, where the wife, knowing that her husband cannot beat her, no matter how much he would like to, or how much she deserves it, uses the knowledge that his hands are tied to tyrannize over him and make a slave of him.

We all know women who keep their husbands poor and worried to death by their extravagance with which the husband is unable to cope because every time he suggests economy the wife goes into hysterics, and to stop her flood of tears and reproaches he lets her buy whatever she wants.

THE TEMPER BARRICADE

We know other women who keep their husbands terrorized by their tempers, because no man can say to a woman the things she feels privileged to say to him.

We know other men who never have a decent meal at home, because their wives are lazy, but while the world condones a woman who gets a divorce from the husband who doesn't support her, bad housekeeping doesn't justify a man in the eyes of the law for leaving his wife, although it should.

All these women are shining examples of the cowardice of petticoats. They play to the privilege of being a woman, and if, indeed, suffrage takes this privilege away from them and forces upon them a sense of responsibility it will justify votes for women, even if it brings no other reform.

A Far Cry!

(From That to This!)

By NELL BRINKLEY

A GIRL I know, with the face of a flower, hair like rosy-gold silk, and a figure like a wood-nymph, sat perched on the balustrade-post of her home. Her gay little face and smart gown of black and gold, with a great knot of gauze between her shoulder blades like a great bug settled there, standing out against the golden flowers behind her—all this made a most beautiful person feminine of this year nineteen-fifteen.

And beside her, perched on the opposite post, clinging with human little hands, and wistful, strange eyes upturned, was a tiny hurdy-gurdy monkey, with his green cappie tipped over one ear.

And while the kind, beautiful face looked down with pity and wonder and questioning, the pinched little face looked up with admiration, wonder and questioning.

And I uncomfortably remembered Darwin's theory, studied the tiny, grasping human hands, the intent, speaking eyes and the grotesque face, and was glad to know that it was a far cry from that to this—a good long infinity of years!—NELL BRINKLEY.

Why We Quarrelled

No. 8—This Wife's Story Concerns a Husband in Love with His Own Cleverness

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company

My husband is an artist. He also writes essays on art. He is clever in his line and is considered by many to be an authority on matters pertaining to his profession.

He knows all this, and that is why we quarrel.

Not because he is clever, but because he knows he is, and is, therefore, conceited.

His talk about himself and his work sounds fearfully blatant to me. I actually suffer as he boasts of his accomplishments. I feel my face grow hot and I can hardly raise my eyes as I listen to some of his assertions.

Again and again I have asked him not to talk so much about himself.

"Let other people discover your cleverness," I say. "You do yourself an injustice by blowing your own trumpet."

"You are the only one who does not appreciate me," he accuses.

But I do appreciate him and I love him. Therefore, it hurts me to have him show his worst side to the public.

I recall one dreadful evening when we were invited to meet a well-known novelist, one whose name is familiar to every intelligent reader. We were among the few people asked to dine with him at a friend's house. The novelist was modest and said little of his own work.

THE UNCONSCIOUS BORE

After a while my husband turned to him with some remarks about an article that he himself had written for one of the magazines. The novelist showed polite interest and asked some perfunctory question. This was enough, and my husband regaled him for at least ten minutes with his theories with regard to sculpture and painting.

"The art magazines are willing to pay me almost anything in reason for my papers on these subjects," he said.

I shuddered. For I remembered that I heard that this novelist got ten cents a word for his stories. I do not know whether this is true or not. But I knew that my husband never got more than two cents a word for the little papers he has written. Art is not popular enough for treatises on it to bring exorbitant prices.

I tried to change the conversation by making some remark about a loan exhibition I had recently attended. The novelist followed my lead, but my husband was not to be checked.

"I was amazed," he remarked, "at some of the miserable daubs in that exhibition. They were actual travesties."

Were his hearers thinking, I wondered, of some of his "daubs?" For no artist makes a masterpiece every time he puts his brush on canvas.

"I thought the whole collection very fine," I ventured, thinking to draw the fire.

But it was useless. "Speaking of the specimens there reminds me," my husband said, "of the bust of Dr. Blank which I did last year. Did you see it?"

He looked at the guest of honor. The author shook his head.

"No," he said, politely regretful. "I did not."

"You have doubtless heard of it," my husband asserted. Then, as the other made no reply, he went on:

"It is really quite as good as, if not rather better than, anything of Rodin's."

Yes, he actually said that! I know that people will not believe a man could be so conceited—yet this is the truth. And I died a dozen deaths of shame. Our hostess did not smile, but I saw her quick glance at her husband. Then she began to talk very fast about something else.

This experience was too strong for my discretion, and on our way home that night I asked my husband if he did not think it was in rather poor taste to make such a statement as this to a whole table-ful of people.

"They may not all agree with you," I added.

"Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "If not, they may; they don't know enough to form any opinion worth consideration. My dear, you forget that if a man does not speak well of his own work, nobody else will. The world takes one at his own valuation. Go!"

"Perhaps," I admitted slowly, "but it is mortifying to one who loves you."

"What!" he ejaculated.

HER DETERMINATION

"Yes," I said, determined to speak the truth now that I had begun. "I know how clever you are, but others must think you fearfully conceited. What would you think if another man talked of his work in the terms that you use in talking of yourself?"

"If he did the same kind of work that I do—I mean as good work—I would think that he was justified in saying anything laudatory that he pleased about it. I tell you—as I have told you often before—one must advertise oneself."

A few weeks later, when I had sat through another such ordeal as I have described, I attempted—for, I hope, the last time—to make him see things as I saw them. I tried a different prelude to my timid suggestion.

"Dear," I said gently, "your work is so well known now that there is no longer any need for you to advertise it by talking of it as you sometimes do."

He turned on me in anger.

"You have told me that often enough!" he burst forth. "For a while I could not understand your attitude. Now I have come to the conclusion that, because you are ignorant of every rule of art yourself, you are jealous of me and my thorough knowledge of the subject. That's it—you're jealous!"

I dared not confess the truth—that I was not jealous, but ashamed of him!

Qualified Verdict

An officer who has seen service in the Philippines gives the following illustration of Filipino judicial acumen:

"An American came home one day just in time to see a thief in the act of climbing out of the window with the better part of the American's wardrobe. He gave chase so earnestly that the thief was finally obliged to drop the clothing so that he might run faster. He soon disappeared from sight. The American gathered up his belongings. Just then along came a native policeman, who proceeded to put the American under arrest, since he seemed to be acting in a suspicious manner.

"To the local magistrate, before whom he was hailed, the American told his story very plainly and emphatically. When he had concluded, the Filipino judge said: 'You are dismissed, but you may leave your clothes here.'

"Why?' demanded the American.

"'For the reason,' answered the magistrate, with the air of a sage, 'that it is still uncertain whether you speak the truth. When the thief returns we will identify these clothes as the ones he stole, you may have them.'"

In Our Wonderful World

The rose possesses far less national significance for England than the leek, the thistle, or the shamrock, for in its time it has been almost everybody's emblem. Every nation has its own legend of the rose.

The Greeks believed it to be colored by the blood of Venus, who trod on the thorn of a white rose when hastening to the aid of her Adonis. The Turks declare it to be colored by the blood of Mohammed. The Syrians made it their emblem of immortality, the Chinese and Romans carried it to their tombs. In Egypt it stood for silence.

The English legend of the rose relates that when the Wars of the Roses were over and the two hostile houses had been united by the marriage of Henry the Seventh of Lancaster to Elizabeth of York, a rose bush in a Whitehall monastery which had borne both red and white roses during the wars now bloomed forth roses with petals of mingled red and white. From every part of the kingdom pilgrims came to view this miracle, and to this day the parti-colored flower obtained by cross breeding is called the York and Lancaster rose.

Cats make the most careful toilet of any class of animals! Lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark rubberlike ball of the forefoot and inner toe, and passing it over the face behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a sponge and brush, and the rough tongue cleans the rest of the body.

The lofty volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands, rising above the ocean from five thousand to nearly fourteen thousand feet, are only the summits of gigantic mountain masses that rise abruptly from the bottom of the Pacific. Mauna Loa, on the island of Hawaii, stands thirteen thousand six hundred and seventy-five feet above sea level, but its slopes descend beneath the sea, as shown by deep-sea soundings, with a grade fully equal to, if not greater than, that of the visible slopes. The same is generally true of the submarine slopes of the other islands, and the depths attained by these continuous slopes, while thirty to fifty miles of the shore vary from fourteen thousand to nineteen thousand feet. Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, if their true bases are considered to be at the bottom of the Pacific, are therefore mountains of as great an altitude as Mount Everest, or approximately thirty thousand feet. No other volcano in the world approaches Mauna Loa in the enormousness of its mass or in the magnitude of its eruptive activity.

It's Easy to Peel Off Your Tan or Freckles

This is what you should do to shed a spoiled complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary cold cream. Let this stay on over night, wash it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how dark or discolored the complexion. The wax literally peels off the dirty surface skin, leaving the lovely young skin beneath. The process is easy, certain and harmless. Get a cake of mercolized wax at any drug store; one bottle usually suffices. It's a delightful cosmetic—perfect for rough, stained, reddened, blotchy, pimply or freckled skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for whitening the skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing astringent lotion. This renders the skin quite fine and smooth; indeed, the blackheads and pimples erase the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

To Have Wavy Hair Like Nature's Own

Here's a brand new recipe, of unquestioned merit, that I believe will do more to make pale, lifeless girls one of the few possessors of truly wavy hair. It's very simple, for all you need do is to apply a few drops of Danderine at night—with a clean tooth brush—and in the morning you will find this has dried in the sweetest curls and waves imaginable. They will be just like Nature's own, having a beautiful gloss and effect produced by a hot iron, which is so obviously artificial.

The application is really beneficial to the hair and gives it that lively, luxuriant much desired. As it is so easy to obtain a few ounces of the liquid almerine from your druggist—sufficient to keep the hair curly for many weeks—there's no reason now for putting up with either that straight, contrary hair or with the ruinous effects of the harmful curling iron substance.—Marie Demarest in Pilgrim Magazine.—Advertisement.

Makes the Eyes Clear, White and Beautiful.

If your eyes ever get bloodshot and yellow you can clear them up in half a minute and make them bright and sparkling by dropping a single drop of pure liquid quintin in each eye. It's wonderful how quickly this prescription works and its use is entirely safe as it contains no cocaine, belladonna or harmful drugs of any kind. Quintin is hexoic acid, and it cannot possibly smart or injure the eyes. This prescription is fine to use before going out in the evening to make the eyes clear and white. Ritter-Rayner and leading druggists everywhere have it put up and ready for use. PLANT JUICE HAS SURELY CURED ME

Statement Made by Mrs. Ella Cougle of 90 Taylor St., Neponset.

A true formula should have three essentials. First, it should give quick relief; second, it should destroy germs of disease, and, third, it should build up new tissues. The first is to inspire the necessary confidence that the sufferer must have in the remedy; second is to completely eliminate the cause of the diseased condition, and the third to build up new tissue to give nature a chance to invigorate every organ of the body. Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, is doing these several things every day by the numerous testimonials now coming every week from where it has been introduced. Since Plant Juice has been introduced in Boston scores of local people have testified to the benefits received.

The following statement from Mrs. Ella Cougle, who lives at No. 90 Taylor St., Neponset, for eighty years, and well known, will show what Plant Juice has done for her. She states:

"For years I have suffered with catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, dizziness, headaches and dizzy spells, with poor circulation, poor appetite, and was very nervous and restless. I had a choking sensation in the throat, caused by gas, and my breath was almost taken away by the gas getting on my heart. My food fermented on my stomach and I was constipated most of the time. A friend told me to try your Plant Juice, and I have taken Plant Juice and nothing else for the last two weeks, and now I can say that I am feeling like a new woman, as I have no more aches or pains, can sleep well at night and know that I'm not going to die soon.

"The Plant Juice Men is at the Cougle Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

'MY RIVALS ARE FAST ASLEEP,' SAYS FOSS

ATTLEBORO, Sept. 1.—Eugene Foss today expressed the utmost and serenest confidence in the ultimate success of his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor.

"Grafton and Sam," former Governor Foss said to the reporters, "are fast asleep. They are making this contest with me according to the rules which obtained in the year 1880. They go around to clambake after clambake, meeting every Saturday the same old crowd of professionals and semi-professionals they met the Saturdays before, while I am meeting the people of the country by the thousands. I think that when the smoke of battle has cleared away the one great big, broad issue of this campaign is national prohibition.

FOSS "RIVALS ASLEEP."

"My friends are fast asleep, to my way of thinking, and they will wake up too late. They do not appreciate the fact that we now have an open primary in this State and that this contest will be decided by the people and not by the politicians."

The "Old Boy" spoke yesterday to 2,000 voters in Plymouth and Bristol counties, facing the largest open-air audiences in Plymouth, Taunton and New Bedford. In Fall River he was hung into a local ordinance suggestive of the heart of Russia, by which out of doors meetings of any kind, by whomsoever conducted, are held to be unlawful. They attempt to enforce this thing in Fall River and have got away with it up to date from fear of the I. W. W. and the Socialists.

"Citizen" William Kershaw pleaded with Mr. Foss to step in the finger of the ordinance and speak from the city square, but the ex-Governor decided to stead to make use of Weaver Hall its Second street. There he had an attentive audience of 150.

MUM AS TO RUM.

Beginning here at 9:50 a. m. the Foss schedules call for the appearance today of the cold water Republican at North Attleboro, Wrentham, Foxboro, North Easton, Stoughton, Canton, Norwood, Dedham, Needham, Wellesley, Natick, South Framingham, Marlboro and Hudson.

Former Lieutenant-Governor Barry and Representative Morton H. Burdick of Adams continue to trail the ex-Governor and to pick up his larger audiences immediately he has finished with them. Barry and Burdick, up to date, have been mum as to rum, taking for their text everywhere Walsh and Wilson.

Foss means to cover in the comink three weeks every city, all the counties and most of the towns of Massachusetts. He says this is the only way of course to pursue in a battle which will be decided in the open primary.

FOSS MEETS JOHN L.

When Mr. Foss reached North Abington he hardly got warmed up before John L. Sullivan interrupted to ask if he did not believe in prohibition, but did believe in temperance.

"If a man buys a pint of whiskey," said John, "they look him up and see whether he is able to pay for them; I think it would be a good thing to look up the men who buy 'wet goods' and see if they are able to afford to control themselves. What do you say, Mr. Foss?"

Mr. Foss admitted it might help, but said he believed in the full prescription—prohibition.

"Why," continued Joan L., "there is a whole lot of money invested in the liquor business, and I think that ought not to be swept away. I think we ought to curtail the manufacture of liquor and let the fellows who have their money in the business down easy. How about it, Mr. Foss?

"I think that no man should be allowed to use his money, or make profits, on his business if it is a detriment to mankind," was the answer.

"I don't believe in the man who make money when it's hurting the other fellow, either," said the former champion, but, Mr. Foss, the liquor men are not hurting the other fellow, the driver. He's hurting himself by drinking the stuff in too large doses. The liquor men sell him the drink, but they don't force it down his throat, and don't you think, Mr. Foss, that if the sale of good liquor was stopped, folks would get into the gang of making a substitute at home, such as they do in the South, and that we would have many more human wrecks from drinking violent, raw 'gasolene'?"

"That," said the former Governor, "is something that will be taken up after we have prohibition."

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

One of the quickest removals on record was made last night by the Regal Motor Sales Company. Immediately after closing its Boylston street establishment at the end of the day's business, the united forces got together and transferred the sales room and office equipment to the handsome new quarters just taken at No. 570 Commonwealth avenue.

This morning the company, which during the night changed its name from the Regal Motor Sales Company to the Porter Motor Sales Company, is doing business in its new quarters, displaying a full line of Regal and Pathfinder cars. General Manager Philips of the Regal Company visited them. Porter, the president, yesterday, inspected the new sales room and congratulated the company on its advancement in the local motor world.

A. L. Danforth, manager of the Cadillac Automobile Company of Boston, returned yesterday from a vacation spent in the woods of New Hampshire. He returns a changed man determined to surpass the record made by his organization last year.

Many automobile dealers are planning for a trip over Labor Day. C. W. Maguire and family and J. H. MacAlman and family are scheduled for Maplewood, where they will engage in a series of golf games. F. A. Hinchcliffe of the Winton is touring New Jersey. Harry Pyke and family will be at Onset. J. P. Hathaway and family will hold forth at Marshfield. Others will enjoy Sunday and the holiday in touring through the White Mountains district.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weaker at the opening and all classes showed losses. Declines did not average much in any group at the start, but a number of issues grew still weaker within a few minutes. The weakness of sterling exchange was generally blamed for the bearish turn the market has taken. But so far this week the attitude of professional traders has been a factor. They have reasoned that after a steady advance for several days a reaction should be the natural sequence. Their raid has not been as effective so far as they supposed it would be in view of their conception of the technical position of the market.

There has been a marked decrease in speculation on the part of the public in war order stocks. London generally realized that if this country's export business is to continue on its present enormous scale credits for a vast sum must be established in this country by the Bankers' Trust Company. There may be more or less hesitancy until the international banking conferences are held in New York, and some arrangement for the loan is made. Exchange on London was quoted at $4.56 in New York early today. Demand sterling touched the new low of $4.55 in the afternoon.

TRADERS WERE CAUTIOUS.

All kinds of traders appear to be in a cautious mood at present and there are few who do not take a risk much in support of their convictions as to the immediate trend of prices. Despite the decline in prices this morning most people are sanguine as to the future.

Among declines in New York fifteen minutes after the opening were Allis-Chalmers 1¼, Car & Foundry ¾, Goodrich ½, Mexican Petroleum ¼, Pressed Steel ¾, Republic Steel ¾, U. S. Steel ¼, Westinghouse ¾, Tennessee Copper 1¼, Inspiration ¼, Utah ¾, Chino ¼, Anaconda ¼, Atchison ¼, Baltimore & Ohio ¾, Canadian Pacific ¾, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, New York Central ¼, New Haven ¾, Northern Pacific ¾, Reading ¾, Southern Pacific ¾, St. Paul ¾, and Union Pacific ¾. Gained, 1¼. Rock Island was up ¼, there was not much in the list.

LOCAL MARKET VERY DULL.

The local market was very dull at the opening and later. Trading was confined to a very few issues and early declines were not large. Boston 1, American Zinc ½, Copper Range ½, North Butte ¼, St. Mary's ¼, and New Haven ¾. Atlantic Gulf preferred was ¾ higher. It touched its highest price in five years.

There has been less buying of copper since the recent advance in prices than producers expected. Foreigners are holding off as much as possible. Domestic consumers are buying only up to the extent expected. October and November electrolytic was offered yesterday at 17¾ cents and sold.

There appears to be more demand for lead and spelter, but offerings of both metals by speculators has caused a shading of prices. Lead is offered at 4.85. Spelter was quoted 16 cents, New York, and 15⅝, St. Louis. Deliveries to the end of the year can be had at 15½. Iron was unchanged, as was spelter. Lead was 35 lower.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE;
OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

PRESIDENT WILSON SHOULD TAKE COUNSEL AGAINST ENGLAND ALSO FOR OUR VIOLATED DIGNITY

The American prints the following interesting communication from Dr. William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's Special Agent in Mexico last year and his biographer:

To the Editor of the American:

NO one knows better than does the present President of the United States that the form of government of which he is the administrative head is far from perfect. No one has been more eloquent than he in declaring the advisability of altering it in a number of important, indeed essential, features.

In one particular Mr. Wilson was accustomed, long before the Presidency came his way, to heap reprobation upon the system which he is now administering, namely, the particular of its irresponsibility to the people. We talk of popular government, but we have never tried popular government, Professor Wilson used to tell us; and he would point to the fact that a Congress elected in November of one year ordinarily met for the first time in December, thirteen months later.

But what especially impressed Mr. Wilson, the student of government, is the fact that the Chief Executive of the Union is, during his term of office, responsible to nobody. In the whole range of governmental systems there is to be found no such functionary as the American President—neither a ruler nor the minister of a ruler, and yet both; wielding the prestige of a sovereign without enjoying the transcendent prerogatives of sovereignty, while at the same time exercising the authority of a prime minister without being restrained by responsibility to representatives of the people.

Mr. Wilson, whose ambition for the Presidency was awakened by reading reports of the British Parliament, has always applauded the idea that the President's Cabinet should be made responsible to Congress, like the British Ministry. He has not, however, proposed such a step since becoming President. Indeed, the plan would be difficult to graft upon the American system. The Cabinet might resign if an administration measure were defeated in Congress, but in what case would that leave the President?

The fact of the matter is we are muddling along under a governmental system that was exceedingly ill thought out, and we have simply to make the best of it, through the exercise of such genius as we fondly persuade ourselves we possess and such common sense as we are actually masters of.

The country owes little to Theodore Roosevelt, but it should not begrudge him gratitude for some of the things he said in his even unusually maladroit speech at Plattsburg the other day. Mr. Roosevelt said: "It is not defensible for any free man in a free republic to say that he will stand by any official, right or wrong. The right of any President is only to demand public support because he does well, and not merely because he is President." Mr. Roosevelt is right.

The legend, "The King can do no wrong," means, in modern phraseology, that if wrong has been done the King could not have done it; or, in other words, that when the King has done wrong, his ministers take the blame. But the President of the United States is his own ministry. It is absurd to claim for his person inviolability sacro-sanct beyond the person of any citizen, or for his sentiments infallibility beyond the degree to which they appeal to the reason of the citizens.

Nor is there, in any but the most abject quarters, any real disposition to do this.

What is practically important, however, is the fact not that the people are forbidden to criticise the President, but that they are powerless to restrain him.

For instance, while the President may not technically declare war, nothing is more certain than that he can actually bring about war. He can assume positions, he can issue State papers, he can pursue, during months of critical gravity, a course of conduct toward foreign governments of which the country may not approve and of which it may be kept in ignorance.

This has been the case during the last twelve months. The conduct of the foreign relations of the United States has been carried on by Woodrow Wilson, acting practically alone. It is a testimony to the high character of the President, but it is no credit to the intelligence of the country, that this has been suffered; especially is it a testimony to the uncompleteness and inefficiency of our constitutional processes. In a truly democratic country every act of the Department of Foreign Affairs would be challengeable and would be challenged by the opposition party. Thus the administrative head of the nation would have had the benefit of advice and criticism, and the country would in large measure have been preserved from the danger of secret international intrigue or ill-advised international sympathies.

It is true that no safeguards have as yet been invented such as totally to abolish this danger. Sir Edward Grey in 1912 negotiated with France an arrangement which bound the British Government to support France with her navy if France was attacked by Germany—an arrangement of which the British Parliament was ignorant, and on learning of which for the first time on the brink of the war to which it led three members of the British ministry resigned their portfolios.

It is, of course, necessary that diplomatic affairs should be carried on by individuals especially charged with the duty. It is not necessary that they should be handed over to the unassisted wisdom, or the unchecked unwisdom, of one man.

No man is wise enough to direct, of his own will and without reference to the understanding, wisdom or desires of the people, the foreign relations of a nation like the United States.

Woodrow Wilson is a man of exceptional talents and high character. It is not too much to say for him that few Presidents in our history have been better equipped (except in the item of actual participation in public affairs) for the high office to which he has risen.

But Woodrow Wilson is not above human error. Wisdom will not die with him. However moist his lips with the waters of Helicon, however odorous his garments with the vapors of Parnassus, Mr. Wilson also is numbered among the mortals.

Moreover, with all his ability and character, there are certain quite special limitations which sit upon Mr. Wilson's fitness to handle alone a crisis such as we are passing through.

He is not, of course, an authority on international law; nor could he pretend to any particular knowledge of international relations, historical or contemporaneous, save such as may have come to him while in office. He is not a student of the map. He is not a travelled man. He has never written, nor spoken, so far as can be remembered, on the political affairs of other nations.

Except as to one nation only.

Mr. Wilson's one passion is English political history. The lives of the English political worthies have been his life-long study. Since his boyhood days he has been writing and speaking about Richard Cobden, John Bright, Burke, Brougham. The incidents of English political life are vivid in his memory and imagination. His ideals of political organization and conduct are drawn from England. He has a keen love for English literature. Whenever he has had a chance he has spent a vacation in England, whose scenery he delights in, enshrining as it does all the literary and historical associations which furnish and adorn his mind, and whose people he sincerely admires, finding among them congenial acquaintances and friends. This is natural and laudable in one whose mother was born in England and all four of whose grandparents were British subjects.

On the other hand, Mr. Wilson has never been in Germany. He has no knowledge of the German language. He is unfamiliar with the literature of Germany; he has not drunk at its fountains of philosophy; has not heard its songs nor listened to its stories. The events and figures of German history are for him dim shadows in the pantomime of time.

Not that there is anything in the least reprehensible in this. But it explains a good deal.

And it renders it all the more necessary that, in the presence of a controversy between English and German ideas, Mr. Wilson should take pains to secure from others the knowledge which he has not within himself.

But with whom does the President consult?

It is the most serious criticism upon Mr. Wilson that he has never shown a disposition to surround himself with high class men. This was the best-founded of the charges against him when he was the head of Princeton University. His Cabinet is a Cabinet of nobodies. As a gathering of political curiosities it might be notable. As a council of national direction it is contemptible. There is not in it a single man whom the country's judgment called to his seat. There is not in it a single man who, apart from his office, would be listened to with any special respect in a gathering of a dozen average men of affairs anywhere. Mr. Lansing's talents as a diplomatic attache are perhaps respectable, but it would be quite absurd to suggest that this suddenly discovered and swiftly promoted subordinate is a statesman. The newly appointed Counsellor of the Department of State is totally, absolutely and unblushingly devoid of the slightest qualification for his office. The First Assistant Secretary is a bucolic politician of the Far West, utterly uninitiate of world affairs. The Second Assistant Secretary, veteran of long and honorable service, is physically handicapped; and the Third Assistant is a precious darling of London drawing-rooms, perfectly competent to adjust White House etiquette to the ceremonial practices of the Court of St. James'.

Moreover, two of the Cabinet's ten members were born subjects of the King of England.

Lacking competent permanent advisers, did the President seek extraordinary advice in a great emergency? In the presence of a crisis the like of which has faced few Presidents, has Mr. Wilson summoned the nation's greatest and best to council? Has he done what Lincoln did when the clouds of 1862 grew black? What the Premier of Britain has been doing. What prudence would dictate to any head of a nation at such a time—gather about him representatives of the wisdom of the people?

No. For days after the Lusitania tragedy Mr. Wilson cut himself off from all human contact and communication. The circumstantial narrative of the isolation during that fatal week of a self-sufficient man, moving in lonely thought through the silent corridors of the White House, while a nation of a hundred millions waited upon his decision, was given out by his secretaries with apparent pride in the Olympian detachment of their master.

That isolation was not temporary. It was characteristic. It is the permanent condition in which Mr. Wilson lives. The very office of the Presidency renders its holder almost hopelessly out of touch with popular sentiment. Kings and Presidents hear precisely what it is known they wish to hear. But never was President so cut off from knowledge of the people's thoughts as is this graduate of the college cloister whose admirers' chief delight is to picture him as an enigma and a superior being.

President Wilson is far more of a man than his friends would make him out. He is neither an enigma nor a superior being. He is a sorely-troubled man, with something of the pride of the mental aristocrat, but with more of the humility of the conscientious Christian upon whose heart rests a heavy responsibility. He is, unfortunately, one of those many men who, through no fault of their own, go through life without acquiring friends. He has rarely had the good fortune to be well-advised and has become skeptical of advice and indisposed to ask it. The fact that his life has been passed among juniors contributes to this indisposition to invite advice. There is no phrase that occurs so constantly in Mr. Wilson's writings as the phrase "taking counsel." Every page of his writings, private and official, displays the author recommending "counsel." The curious iteration is a paradoxical "testimony" that the author has never enjoyed that to which his mind is so constantly allured.

It is true that no living sovereign would have dared shut himself up to decide alone, uncounseled, the vast issue of peace or war involving two hemispheres. Mr. Wilson was not contemptuous of advice; he was not accustomed to advice, and did not know where to turn for it.

Can it be doubted that if the President had consulted the common sense of the country he would have spared himself the terrific anxieties which have tortured him since he rashly laid upon Germany the demand that she abandon her submarine activity—a demand the folly of which only the obscuring mercy of delay and the fact that a government whose armies were gaining daily victories could afford to be conciliatory, have worked together to efface?

Fortune has now opened to President Wilson a rare opportunity. A kind Providence has saved the country from the immediate catastrophe which his dangerous policy invited. A respite has come for the German crisis. With a magnanimity which few expected from it, the Kaiser's government has taken toward the President's expectations a position of high generosity and friendliness. It accedes to them, freely and fully. At the same time, without stipulation, it suggests that the United States make to Great Britain representations parallel to those to which it has acceded.

The suggestion is just. It throws upon the United States Government a duty which should be immediately set about in the most generous measure of good faith.

The President has now another opportunity at last to take counsel of the wisdom of the people—that wisdom he has so often eloquently apostrophized, but with which he has done so little to acquaint himself. If he will consult it he will learn that it demands the vindication against England also of our violated dignity—the assertion now against England of the right of American citizens to sail the seas with lawful cargoes—a right which for a year has been trampled upon by the British Government, not as an impulsive war measure, but with calculation and persistency, viciously and contemptuously.

WM. BAYARD HALE.

The sentences in heavy-faced type in the foregoing letter are accentuations by Dr. Hale, and not by the AMERICAN.

Who Dr. Hale Is

William Bayard Hale, editor and publicist, is a native of Indiana, a graduate of Harvard and the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Cambridge. He was editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine in 1900, when it was owned by John Brisben Walker, and of Current Literature in 1901. He was afterward a special correspondent for the New York World and editor of the New York Times Literary Review. He is Knight Commander of the Order of the Rising Sun (Japan) and an officer of the Order of King Leopold (Belgium). He is the author of "A Week in the White House," with President Roosevelt, and of a biography of President Wilson.

When Dr. Hale was made Special Representative of the Wilson Administration in Mexico, the World's Work, which is owned by the firm of which Walter Hines Page, Mr. Wilson's Ambassador to England, is a member, said of him:

"Dr. Hale visited the revolutionary chiefs in northern Mexico and held a series of conferences with General Carranza and his staff. These conferences were followed shortly afterward by the abolition of the embargo on arms and munitions of war, which had placed the revolutionists at a disadvantage."
